The Switch and Rumor Has It movies analogies

My premise in citing these works of fiction is that similar events occured when evil Sidney Gottlieb and OSS CIA Vatican Mason types used hidden away Glorian Donegan ovum during my pregnacy, Feb 20 November 18 9 Months and her birthday December 13 as sort of annums of that pregnancy and delivery, and a half brother, perhaps in the same "oven" of Eva Ban, Barrack Obama with Malcom X as a father, Biologist using his own birthday to claim it was Obamas August 4 1961 and perhaps for sleeper agents, gooming twins for twins studies, race research, and studying with the Windsors on covert research a gene tied to speech and language running in the Windsor line and studied in out of wedlock WIndsor lines.

Mu delivery was November 18 and birth certificate issued and signed November 19.

My theory is rather than use those dates for Obama, JFK being at my Manhattan Beach Manhattan Project atomic bomb testing and development birth, the CIA moved the location to Hawai, also in atomic testing, and Gottlieb August 8 birthday delivery dates of August 3 and August 4.

The Switch is a 2010 American romantic comedy film formerly titled The Baster,[3] was inspired by the short story "Baster" by Jeffrey Eugenides.

> 30-something Kassie Larson (Jennifer Aniston) is single, hasn't found love yet, and decides she wants to have a baby. Despite the objections of her long-time, best friend Wally Mars (Jason Bateman), she chooses to do so alone because she can't wait any longer. She also wants a face-to-face sperm donor, disdaining using a sperm bank.
> Roland produces his sperm in the bathroom, leaving it in a sample cup.
> Wally uses the bathroom and sees the sample. Drunk, Wally plays with the cup and accidentally spills it into the sink. Panicking, neurotic Roland replaces the sperm with his own.

> Wally notices the strong personality and behavioral similarities between him and Sebastian (Kassie Larson's 7 year old) and realizes the result of the switch out sperm cups and the fertilization of Kassie Lorason (Jennifer Aniston) which occurred seven years earlier.

Rumor Has It (stylized as Rumor Has It...) is a 2005 American romantic comedy film directed by Rob Reiner,

> The concept of the screenplay by Ted Griffin is that Sarah Huttinger, (Jennifer Aniston) learns that her mother and grandmother may be the inspiration for the 1963 novel The Graduate by Charles Webb.
>
> Sarah visits her mother's best friend, Aunt Mitzy, who confirms that Jocelyn spent time with their prep school classmate Beau Burroughs the week before her wedding to Sarah's father Earl, and that Beau was friends with Charles Webb, the author of the novel The Graduate.
> Jeff points out Sarah's parents were married just short of nine months before her birth, leading her to wonder if Beau might really be her biological father. Sarah also accuses her grandmother of being the inspiration for Mrs. Robinson, the older character who seduced the young man (in The Graduate)

I believe my father and mother were Manchurian Candidate(s) used for involuntary race and twins research and used for the creating of Obama which my mother seemed to realize later in her life as best as I can tell and bitterly hated he fact.

Much of the stalking and life sabotage I have experienced has centered on harassing my positive attributes and trying to provoke negative cognitive attributes by picking fights with me I do not want.

I am going to cite the Ruins here in that my life in the USA, and most other peoples life in the USA is amidst hostile vines, I am using as a metaphor, for Illuminati tentacles with sufficient hostile be secretive reach as to accomplish illegal goals which protect Free Masons from those the Free Masons victimized, and I realized far too late the vines were surrounding me and my mother, even my father, so they already had the inroads to have exposed me to potentially lethal financial abuse conditions constraining good outcomes in my otherwise normal would be life.

The Ruins (film) is a 2008 supernatural horror film

> The group of tourists in a remote Forrest now realizes that the vines around a pyramid are predatory
>
> Two young American couples - Jeff (Jonathan Tucker) and Amy (Jena Malone), and Eric (Shawn Ashmore) and Stacy (Laura Ramsey) - enjoy their vacation in Mexico. They meet Mathias (Joe Anderson), a German tourist, who is looking for his brother Heinrich. His last known location is an archaeological dig at a remote Mayan ruin in the jungle. They are also joined by Dimitri (Dimitri Baveas), Mathias's friend. The group reaches the ruins of a Mayan temple, and are confronted by Mayan villagers with guns and bows. Mathias tries to explain their purpose, but the villagers do not understand Spanish or English. When Amy accidentally steps on some vines while taking a picture, the villagers become increasingly agitated. Dimitri approaches the villagers, hoping to appease them, but they shoot and kill him. The rest of the group flees up the steps of the ruins.
>
> The group now realizes that the vines are predatory
>
> The next morning, Stacy awakens and leaves the tent where the rest of the group is sleeping. She finds a backpack, which contains a knife. Jeff hears moans coming from outside and goes to see what is going on. Jeff and Amy follow with Eric. Jeff walks over to Stacy trying to calm her down as she has a deep gash on her forehead and is slicing up her thigh to get a vine out. He touches her and she flails the knife at him, slicing his palm. He backs away. Eric also approaches Stacy, trying to calm her down. As he touches her back to calm her, she spins around and fatally stabs him in the chest. While the rest try to restrain Stacy, Eric is dragged away by the vines. Overcome with remorse, Stacy begs Amy to kill her, and Jeff kills her as an act of mercy.

Christopher Pyle

Pyle graduated from Bowdoin College (1961) and earned LLB (1964), MA (1966), and PhD (1974) degrees at Manhattan Project's Columbia University overlooking Manhattan Beach.[1]

In the 1960s, Pyle served in the United States Army as a captain in Army Intelligence Command (now United States Army Intelligence and Security Command).[1]

In the 1960s while an Army captain in intelligence, Pyle learned that "Army intelligence had 1,500 plainclothes agents watching every demonstration of 20 people or more throughout the United States," (as later Pyle recounted on December 19, 2005, on Democracy Now[3] and again on ABC News on January 6, 2006,[4]) as part of a broad-based program of domestic spying.

Frank Forrester Church III (July 25, 1924 - April 7, 1984) was an American lawyer and politician. A member of the Democratic Party, he served as a United States Senator from Idaho from 1957 to 1981. He is known for heading the Church Committee, which investigated abuses within the United States Intelligence Community.

By the early years of the 1970s, a series of troubling revelations had appeared in the press concerning intelligence activities. First came the revelations by Army intelligence officer Christopher Pyle in January 1970 of the U.S. Army's spying on the civilian population[1] [2] and Senator Sam Ervin's Senate investigations produced more revelations.[3]

Then on December 22, 1974, The New York Times published a lengthy article by Seymour Hersh detailing operations engaged in by the CIA over the years that had been dubbed the "family jewels".

Covert action programs involving assassination attempts on foreign leaders [and replacement of them with Groomed USA Leaders born with Family Jewels, Windsor Secret Princedoms] and covert attempts to subvert foreign governments were reported for the first time. In addition, the article discussed efforts by intelligence agencies to collect information on the political activities of US citizens.[4]
